Girl Scouts Plan Summer Projects For Training

Special summer projects planned by two of Murray Council Girl Scout troops loom large in the list of important vacation happenings.

Troop 12, under the leadership of Mrs. Arlo Sprunger, is working hard in preparation for a trip to Berea, Kentucky, July 23 through August 2, to see "Wilderness Road," the much publicized dramatic production telling the story of the early days of the settlement of the state.

The play is to further the scout's badge work in history, and the trip across the state will likewise add enrichment material for this badge, as well as their Traveler's badge, while their camping in the state park area while at Berea will add to their campership qualifications. In preparation, the scouts have been divided into patrols responsible for various aspects of their journey across the state and camp-out while at Berea. Menus have been planned, necessary equipment decided upon, itinerary studied for the maximum of sight-seeing, plus historical value, plus time and travel-saving. The individual girls are busy earning their necessary funds, and interest is high.

Scribe Wayne Doran, of Troop 15, reports similar activities and plans for her troop, under the direction of Mrs. William Wallace. For the past several weeks, Wayne's notes on troop business have been concerned with the planned week-end trip to Henderson and Audubon Park, June 1. Troop 15 is working on Traveler's Badge. The scouts have mapped out their route, figured the mileage and planned their time to the last available minute and activity. Patrols have been formed, two to each of the two cabins to be occupied, and housekeeping charts set forth the responsibilities of every scout, while charts show the activities planned for the journey and the stay. Menus and wardrobes have been discussed and decided upon. Activities will include swimming and hiking, a

Frost Causes Heavy Damage

A late spring frost struck the nation's northeast Friday causing damage estimated at $5 million to the Massachusetts fruit crop alone.

In the Southwest, more thunder-showers were expected to send swollen Oklahoma rivers over their banks in the wake of three straight rain-drenched days.

Early crops on truck farms throughout Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey and New York were hit hard by the hard frost. Alfalfa and clover crops of cattlefeed growers also suffered.

Early reports from New Jersey indicated whole fields of tomatoes were destroyed. Rockland County farmers in New York counted a total loss estimated as high as $300,000. Strawberry and cherry crops in the area were reported wiped out.

The cold mass of air sent temperatures skidding to a record low of 42 in Newark, N.J., and to 27 in eastern Long Island, N.Y.

Turbulent weather in the Southwest brought a flurry of tornado reports into Texas and Oklahoma weather bureaus Friday. One was sighted near Eldorado, Okla., Friday night by Ground Observer Corps. Two funnels were reported elsewhere in the state, and a pair in Texas.

None were confirmed, and no damage was reported.

Industrial Arts Display At Parker Motors For Two Days

There will be an exhibit of industrial arts projects made by students at Murray High School and the Training School in the Parker Motors show room on Saturday, May 26 and Sunday, May 27.

This exhibit is being sponsored jointly by the Ford Motor Company Industrial Arts Awards Division, Dearborn, Michigan, Parker Motors, local Ford dealer, the Western Kentucky Industrial Arts Association, Murray High School and the Training School.

For several years the Ford Motor Company has sponsored an Industrial Arts award program on the national level whereby outstanding industrial arts school projects have been sent to Dearborn, Michigan to compete in a national judging contest in which numerous prizes have been awarded. This year for the first time the Ford Motor Company is sponsoring jointly with local agencies community industrial arts school shop exhibits throughout the country prior to the national exhibit which will be held at Dearborn, Michigan on July 11, 12 and 13. Approximately 25 Ford gold pins and 50 certificates will be awarded to students entering industrial arts projects in the local Parker Motors and two local high schools cordially invite everyone to visit the industrial arts exhibit today and Sunday in the local Ford dealers show room. Included in the exhibit will be a large variety of furniture pieces, plastic projects, leathercraft projects, and metal projects which were made by students in the industrial arts shops at Murray High School and the Training School. These students have done very outstanding work this year and would appreciate it if the parents and citizens will come by to see the beautiful projects they have made in their classes.

Fred Schantz, instructor of industrial arts at Murray High, Mr. Schantz was assisted by Teddy Lash and Kenneth Cremer. The instructors of industrial arts at the Training School are student teachers under the supervision of Mr. Ronald J. Bond of the industrial arts department at Murray State College.

A P. Slaughter of South 11th street brought in a head of lettuce this morning that measured 14 1/2 inches in diameter. The large head, which was found to the center, weighed three pounds and four ounces.

Mr. Slaughter said that he had eaten English peas for the past two weeks and had plenty of hard head cabbage.

He said that he got an early start by preparing his garden in the fall and rigging the rows in the Spring. The rows are all ready and he just has to plant. Mr. Slaughter says that he does not have to worry about the soil being too wet to plow in the Spring, by preparing his rows in the fall.

MOSQUITOES FOUGHT

Aerial spraying to control salt marsh mosquitoes was completed in Hopkins County Friday but a neighboring county may need the spraying planes.

The four planes used in combating the insects sprayed the Flat Creek and Clear Creek watersheds in the Nebo section Friday.

In Marshall County residents have reported swarms of the mosquitoes and officials said the planes would be used there in the next few days. The spraying in Hopkins County has been a success, County Judge L. R. Slaton said.

This Week's Balance Sheet In The Hot And Cold Wars

By CHARLES M. MCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The weeks good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

The Good

1. The United States dropped an H-bomb from a B-52 intercontinental bomber plane over little Namu Island in the western Pacific. The test was completely successful. It teamed the terrible destructive power of the H-bomb to the world's fastest giant bomber. Thus there was added to the American arsenal a new weapon which could destroy any city, anywhere in the world, in answer to an attack on the United States. It was reported that in further tests, next month, the United States might set off another new weapon — possibly an H-bomb warhead attached to a pilotless missile.

2. President Eisenhower had some comforting words for Americans who fear that the free world is losing ground to the Communists in the cold war. He said that troublesome new problems were rising in West-East competition, economic as well as military. Things are far from perfect, he said in a Washington press conference, but he held: "I think there is too much pessimism. We are making progress, although it is slow and tortuous and, at times, disappointing."

3. The visit of President Sukarno of Indonesia, a leading Asian "neutralist," to the United States promised to bring good results. In his speeches, Sukarno criticized the American military aid program. But he also had many friendly things to say. He showed a warm, appealing personality which won him friends. There seemed reason to hope that he would return home with a more favorable view of American policy.

The Bad

1. The increasing friendliness of President Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt to the Communists caused serious misgivings in Washington. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles expressed regret at Nasser's recognition of Communist China. President Eisenhower, at his press conference, said he thought Nasser was making a mistake. Nasser, the next day, announced that he had accepted an invitation to visit Chinese Red Premier Chou En-Lai. It was announced also that Nasser would send a military mission to Peking, the Red capital, led by his defense minister.

2. France seemed heading toward another of its many cabinet crises. Pierre Mendes-France, co-leader of the government coalition, resigned from his post as vice premier because of disagreements with Premier Guy Mollet over Algerian and other issues. Mollet announced that he would demand a vote of confidence in a debate next week on North African policy. He was expected to win it. But his shaky government appeared to be getting steadily weaker.

3. The Cyprus situation got increasingly explosive. In London, special guards were given cabinet ministers and the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Queen Elizabeth, in fear of assassination attempts by Greek Cypriots who want the island handed to Greece. Turkish Cypriots, enraged by the murder of a Turkish policeman in Cyprus, stoned Greek shops. British troops intervened to prevent new outbreaks. The Cypriot extremists called out school children, including girls six years old, to insult and stone British soldiers.

Public Is Invited To Attend And Inspect Modern Facilities

The new office building of the Murray Electric System and the Murray Water and Sewer System will be officially opened on Monday, May 28. E. S. Ferguson, Superintendent of the Electric System, announced today.

The new building will be open for the public's inspection from 10:00 a.m. till 7 p.m. Ferguson said. Light refreshments will be served and visitors will be conducted through the building.

According to Ferguson, the building, the newest and most modern in Murray, was built at a total cost of about $100,000. It was financed entirely from earnings. The electric system paid for 70 per cent of the building and the water and sewer system, 30 per cent.

"We cordially invite everyone to come in and go through the building," Ferguson said. "It's owned by the people of Murray and we know that they will be just as proud of it as we are."

The beautiful new building is modern throughout. Besides the usual office space, it has a large auditorium and all electric kitchen. It's electrically heated and air conditioned with three 5-ton heat pumps. There is a night depository for the convenience of customers.

"The growth of the electric system, plus the growth of the water and sewer system, is responsible for this new building," Ferguson said. "We had to have more space and more modern facilities in order to continue to keep up with the progress of Murray."

Ferguson gave these examples of electrical progress in Murray. Electric Plant Value: Now stands at more than $775,000, four times what it was in 1942 when Murray started distributing low cost TVA generated electricity.

Kilowatt Hours Sold: Last year totaled almost 40 million. That is three times the national average and seven times as much as was used in 1943.

Average Cost: Electricity used

Average Home Use: Last year climbed to 8,195 kWh. That is three times the national average and seven times as much as was used in 1943.

More Atomic Subs To Be Constructed

WASHINGTON, May 26 — Construction of two more atomic submarines — one the Navy's largest, the other its fastest — will start next Tuesday at Groton, Conn.

Keels of the new undersea craft will be laid with little fanfare at the yards of Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. The two craft bring to nine the total of atomic-powered subs built or being built. Another six are scheduled for construction during the fiscal year starting July 1.

The big new submarine will be a radar picket boat, designed to screen naval task forces against air, sea or underwater attack. It will weigh 6,000 tons, compared with the 3,000-ton Nautilus—the world's first atomic sub.

A great weight of modern radar and other detection gear for detecting attack coming from any direction will be crammed into the hull of the sub, now known only as submarine No. 586. The boat will be driven by two atomic reactors.

The second sub, designed for attack, will be more astonishing in many ways than any of the earlier atomic-powered vessels. Named the Skipjack, it will feature a tear-drop shaped "Albacore" hull which takes its name from the experimental, conventionally-powered sub Albacore.

The combination of high-speed hull and single atomic reactor are expected to give the Skipjack much more speed than the Nautilus, which itself zips along under water at more than 20 knots.

in the home last year averaged less than one cent a kilowatt hour. In 1943, average cost for home use was 3.11 cents a kWh.

Taxes Paid: The electric system paid into the city's general fund last year about $25,000 in tax equivalents.

Robert Huie, Superintendent of Murray's Water and Sewer System cited these examples of the progress of the water and sewer system.

Plant Value: Now stands at $885,000. Total assets — $1,230,000.

Customers: Water customers total 2,400; almost 1,600 people use the sewer system.

Use of Water: Last year people in Murray used a total of 267,764,000 gallons of water, an average of 733,000 gallons a day.

Pumping Capacity: The city is supplied from three wells, two with a capacity of 600 gallons a minute each and one with a capacity of 800 gallons a minute.

"The Water and Sewer System is in excellent shape," Huie said. "We've added several new features and much new equipment during the past 10 years. The present system is capable of handling the city's present needs and taking care of future growth."

Boy Kills Parents Because They "Hated Him"

WATSEKA, Ill., May 26 — A 15-year-old boy shot his four parents to death Friday night because they "hated him."

Lester Deffenbach, first blasted Stanley Jensen, 34, with three rounds from a 12-gauge shotgun. Then he pursued Jensen's wife, Margery, 31, and he killed her with a single shot from a .22 caliber rifle.

Deffenbach, who gave up quietly after the shootings, told sheriff's deputies he had been planning "for months" to kill the farm couple, but didn't have the nerve to do it until Friday night.

Authorities said the boy was an inmate of the St. Charles, Ill., school for boys, a state institution for delinquents, until the Jensens took him into their home in July, 1954.

Deffenbach said he armed himself with Jensen's three guns during the afternoon while they were out. When Jensen stepped into the kitchen Friday night, the boy was waiting with a shotgun, a pistol and a rifle.

The youth told police he killed Jensen instantly with the shotgun, threw the weapon into a cistern, and then waited for Jensen's wife. Deffenbach emptied the nine-shot pistol at Mrs. Jensen when she came in the front door with her two daughters, Sandra, 9, and Sharon, 5, but missed all shots.

Mrs. Jensen fled screaming from the house with her daughters. The youth followed close behind with the rifle and shouted:

"There's no use in running. Your husband is dead."

Mrs. Jensen ran about 300 yards before collapsing from exhaustion. Deffenbach said she begged for her life when he caught up with her, but he ignored her pleas and killed her with a shot in the chest.

The daughters ran to nearby farm houses from where neighbors called authorities. Sheriff's deputies said the boy made no attempt to escape.

- SPORT PARADE -

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball world looks on the arrival of Sal Maglie with the Brooklyn Dodgers as one of the weirdest events in the history of the game.

Not even the days when Brooklyn made a habit of putting three men on base — the same base — holds a candle to the "Barber" being over a Flatbush chair. The inference was that he'd better keep his razor handy.

But to Maglie, once one of the most detested of the hated Giants, it's just like coming home.

"It was a much stranger feeling when the Giants sold me to Cleveland in mid-1951," Maglie explained as he sat in the Dodger dressing room with that unfamiliar lettering across his chest. "That was really a startling feeling."

Sal had a faraway look in his eyes as he ran a hand across his fame five o'clock shadow, the ever-blooming stubble which resulted in his nickname when he came up to the Giants in 1950 after playing in the Mexican League. That was when Leo Ducey took one glance and grunted:

"He looks more like the Barber handling the end chair."

After which, in more than five seasons as a Giant, Maglie shaved a lot of rivals — the closest rarer jobs held in reserve for the Dodgers. Through that period he won 22 from Brooklyn and lost only six, hurling five shutouts at the club he most loved to beat.

But then he was sold to Cleveland and there, among a wealth of pitchers, Maglie got lost. Last season he pitched only 26 innings for the Indians. This spring they used him for only five innings in two games before taking Brooklyn's cash last week.

"Going to Cleveland was the toughest jump," Maglie insisted as he looked around at his new Brooklyn teammates. "It was a case of strange parks, strange hitters and nothing but strange faces."

There was a satisfied grin on the lean, saturnine face which glowers habitually when he is on the mound.

Like Coming Home

"This is almost like coming home. After all, I've known all these guys for years. I know all the National League parks and I know the hitters. Even when I walked in here, in the Dodger clubhouse, I felt like they all were old friends of mine."

Maglie's hopes are high as he contemplates pitching with that famed Dodger power behind him.

"I wasn't pitching well for a while because of a bad back," he explained. "Favoring it gave me bad pitching habits. But I'm straightened out now and I feel okay. I think I can help Brooklyn."

When, whether he admits it or not, are words you never thought you'd hear from "the Barber," the man who paced the dramatic Giant pennant march which unseated the Dodgers in 1951.

Now, if the Dodgers can only get Bobo Thomson from Milwaukee that scenario will be complete.

Robinson Elated Over Bobo KO

By JACK CUDDY

United Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Champion Sugar Ray Robinson, elated at his "no fluke" knockout over Carl "Bobo" Olson in their return mid-weight title fight, said today, "I would like to make my next defense against Carmen Basilio in New York."

The 35-year-old Ray, who again flattened ex-champ Glen May 18, before 20,000, at Wrigley Field, explained, "Chairman Julius Helfand, of the New York Boxing Commission asked me to make the New York defense, and I would like to do it." Basilio of Syracuse, N.Y., is an ex-welterweight champ.

Ray added, "Maybe I'd really get a chance to show whether my legs are gone against Basilio."

He said he didn't get a chance May 18 because his right to the body and terrific left hook to the chin, knocked out San Francisco's Bobo at 2:54 of the fourth round.

Ring History Repeats

Coincidentally, it was at 2:51 of the second round in Chicago, last Dec. 9, when Robinson climaxed his comeback campaign by re-capturing the mid-weight crown for the second time on a kayo over Bobo.

That December ending came so quickly and unexpectedly that many boxing men considered it a "fluke." Accordingly, Ray and Bobo went into the ring at "even money" for their scheduled 15-rounder at sunset May 18.

There was so much uncertainty about the outcome that an estimated 20,000 fans paid an estimated $200,000 gate. The state's richest fight May 18 was additionally aided by $100,000 from radio and television.

Champion and challenger were guaranteed $75,000 each by the Hollywood American Legion Stadium which promoted the bout.

Each had the privilege of taking 30 per cent of the net receipts if they exceeded the $75,000 guarantee. The estimator indicated that 30 per cent would be about $78,000.

Both Need Dough

Both Ray and Bobo need their purses badly. Robinson owes the government $81,904 in back taxes, and Olson's wife announced May 18 a separate maintenance suit that will tie up and perhaps absorb all his assets.

Olson, scaling 160 pounds to Robinson's 159½, was just taking time to come on well in the fourth round when the cloudless sky fell in on him.

In the fourth session, Bobo was warned for the second time in the bout because he insisted on keeping the top of his head in Robinson's face. Bobo landed a hard left hook to the head then a right to the temple that knocked the champion sideways. He followed with a right and left to the body as an exchange started.

Then, when Robinson shot a straight right to Bobo's body, and boom—a left hook to the head that dropped Bobo on his back on the canvas. He rolled over and tried to get up, but was only half-sitting when counted out.

ACCIDENT, BOY SAYS

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 24 (AP) — A 14-year-old boy claimed today he accidentally shot a 13-year-old schoolmate during target practice, but police investigated to determine whether the death was a slaying.

The teenager led police Wednesday to the body of Walter H. Muse III, carefully concealed beneath rocks and leaves on a lonely wasteland known as Dogtown common on the outskirts of this historic fishing port.

Police questioned the boy all night and then released him in custody of his parents. He was to be questioned again today.

The boy was quoted as saying he accidentally shot Muse with a .22 caliber revolver while they were at target practice.

Visit Of Indonesia Chief, Paim

By CHARLES M. McCANN
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 The visit of President Sukarno of Indonesia to the United States has the makings of a big headache for the State Department.

It is unlikely that the visit of brother Sukarno, as Indonesians call him, will result in any important agreements.

Nor is it likely to change the trend in the South Asia area. This trend, in which Indonesia is a leader, is toward "neutrality."

But two countries whose friendship is valuable to the United States will be watching every development during Sukarno's visit with close attention — and with suspicion.

These two countries are The Netherlands and Australia.

The Netherlands is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. A small one, it is true, but an important one.

Australia is allied with the United States in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. It also is allied with this country directly in the United States-Australia-New Zealand defense treaty which was signed in San Francisco on Sept. 1, 1951.

It happens that at this time relations between Indonesia and The Netherlands, from which it won its independence in 1949, are exceedingly bad. Indonesia has broken its last political ties with The Netherlands.

One reason — among several — for these bad relations is the claim of Indonesia to Netherlands New Guinea, covering an area of 151,000 square miles.

Australia possesses the remaining 159,000 square miles of New Guinea, the world's second largest island. It owns part outright and holds the rest under a United Nations trusteeship.

The Netherlands refuses to give up its part of New Guinea. Australia refuses to entertain the idea that Netherlands New Guinea become part of Indonesia. In fact, it is very probable that if it came to a showdown, Australia would fight to keep Indonesia out.

When Secretary of State John Foster Dulles visited Indonesia last March he commented on the similarity between the early days of the United States and the present status of Indonesia in their development from colonial status.

Meaningless Compliment
 Dulles undoubtedly intended it to be simply a diplomatically meaningless compliment.

But it roused the greater anger in The Netherlands. And it did not go over well in Australia.

Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph M. A. H. Luns said in Parliament: "The government is shocked and disappointed that Mr. Dulles has created the impression that the United States government approves the actions of the Indonesian government against The Netherlands."

Hence it looks as if Dulles — and President Eisenhower — will have to walk a diplomatic tight-rope in any statements they may make to Sukarno. Anything that could possibly be interpreted as siding with Indonesia against The Netherlands or in favor of Indonesia's ambitions, certainly will be interpreted that way.

Challenge For Dr. Mays

A new novel by ELIZABETH SEIFERT.
 © 1955, by Elizabeth Seifert. Reprinted by permission of the publisher, Dodd, Mead & Co., Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS
 A group of doctors in the Midwest, a suburb of Burbank try to establish a free screening clinic for lack of money and opposition from the County Hospital. Dr. John Blandin, a strong booster of the project, returns from a meeting and tells his wife, Helen, that enough money has been donated to set up the clinic.

CHAPTER 2
 JOHN BLANDIN did "go on," catching up the threads of the County doctors' reasons for wanting the clinic in the first place. Each of the four suburbs in question was as large as many a city, he said, with homes and families in greater proportion than most municipalities enjoyed. Most of the doctors had been opened to serve these suburban families; doctors had come to live there, too, and had opened their offices, though most of them also affiliated with hospitals in the city.

But the doctors needed a way to reach the County people in the same fashion that the various hospital and clinic services were available—handy—to the people in the city. Three years ago, with this sort of service in mind, the doctors had formed an organization; their initial step had been to establish a night emergency call service. At first they rented a small store for a desk and their records, and the necessary book-keeping. Slight emergencies had come in there, or were brought in the mistaken idea that a doctor would be present. The next step was to have one on hand. That predicated some equipment, and the makeshift quarters were unsatisfactory for the purpose.

About that time the County Day School gave up its property at the edge of Burbank. The doctors were asked if they would be interested in the "plant" as a permanent location. A favorable, long-term mortgage was offered them, and was accepted, hesitantly.

In the heart of the new shopping center, the location was ideal. The doctors plan was to establish an examining clinic, a screening clinic, for well people.

If they could make a housewife take an hour from her shopping to go in for a check-up; if she would then send her husband in and bring her children...

There were various organizations ready to help them, the State Medical Association, the Public Health Service, the Heart and Cancer and Tuberculosis organizations.

And with their help the clinic was started. Some day the doctors hoped to have all the equipment and personnel that they needed.

But now, John announced abruptly, "we can do all we want to do, and it can be free."

Helen jumped. She'd grown a little drowsy during the recapitulation of the clinic's history, which was as familiar to her as the chronological record of her marriage to John Blandin.

"What changed things tonight? What's the clinic going to use for money?"

John stood up. "The same thing the Milburns use, my sweet."

Helen leaned back in her chair to study his face. "Oh," she moaned, "not Alice!"

"Yes, we want our clinic," he said tightly. "And Alice—Mrs. Milburn—is ready to give us the necessary cash to set us up properly. Immediately."

"Not just like that?" cried Helen. "Not just tonight—out of the blue?"

He sat down beside her, and put his hand affectionately upon her forearm. "I'll make it brief," he promised. "My idea was that the clinic might get the support of the Women's Club. I had hoped the whole Club would underwrite the clinic as a financial project."

Helen kept her face smooth and her tongue still. Until tonight, John had not mentioned this idea to her; she could have told him—

"But," he was saying, a little frown between his brows, "some politics—female, and thus incomprehensible to me—it had to do somewhat with so many terms on the Club's Board of Directors, anyway, it was politics, and in the course of it—or would it be them?—the Club turned the thing down. But fortunately for us—"

He hesitated. "Fortunately for us," he repeated. "Alice took their refusal as a direct slap at her, since she was the one who was pushing support of the clinic. Just to show those women—that was her term—she has offered to finance the whole thing alone. As she can, of course."

"How much?" asked Helen.

John nodded, smiling.

OPEN HOUSE AT MURRAY'S

● Modern Building

Murray's newest and most modern building houses the electric system and the water and sewer system. Paid for from earnings, it cost about $100,000. The electric system financed 70% of the building, the sewer and water system, 30%. It's completely modern throughout, a building to be proud of.

MURRAY ELECTRIC SYSTEM AND
MURRAY WATER AND SEWER SYSTEM

NEW UTILITY BUILDING!

A progressive city requires a progressive utility system. And that Murray is a progressive city is obvious from the remarkable growth of the city's electric system during the past 15 years. These two municipally owned utilities have grown because you people in Murray have demanded growth; they have had to grow in order to keep up with your demands for more and better electric service, for a better water and sewer system.

This beautiful new building is the result of Murray's progress. The old office was much too small and crowded; we had to have more space, more modern facilities, so we could give you the kind of service you want.

Our new headquarters is modern in every respect. It's electrically heated and air conditioned with the amazing heat pump; the lighting is beautiful and meets modern lighting standards; the all electric kitchen features the latest electric appliances; office furniture and equipment is new; there's a night depository for your convenience.

You'll be proud of the new Municipal Building. Plan now to come to its formal opening on Monday, May 28, from 10 a.m. til 7 p.m. See Murray's newest and most modern office building.

Electrical Growth In Murray Remarkable In Past 15 Years

The Murray Electric System started distributing low cost TVA electricity on June 11, 1942. Since then, the city's electrical growth has been rapid and steady. Here are some of the highlights of the system's growth . . . and some of the reasons why the new building was necessary.

Highlights of electrical growth

- Electric Plant Value: Now stands at more than $775,000 . . . almost four times what it was in 1942, when we started distributing low cost TVA generated electricity.
- Killowatt-hour Sales: Last year reached almost 40 million. Total kwh sales in 1943 was only a little more than 4 million.
- Consumers Served: Now stands at 3,000; we delivered electricity to only 1,500 in 1943.
- Average Home Use: Last year jumped to 8,195 kwh. That's more than seven times as much as you used in your homes in 1943 . . . and it's more than three times the national average.
- Average Cost For Home Use: Last year dropped to less than 1 cent a kwh. In 1943, you paid an average of 3.11 cents a kwh for the electricity you used in your homes. Your electric rates are among the lowest in the nation.
- TAXES PAID: Your Electric System pays to the City of Murray $4,814.84—to the County $20,871.04.

E. S. FERGUSON is Superintendent of the Murray Electric System.

THE BEAUTIFUL, all electric kitchen will be used for meetings and demonstrations about new and more economical ways to use electricity in the home.

Murray's Water And Sewer Systems Valued At $900,000

A pure and adequate supply of water is essential to the welfare and progress of any city. So is a good sewer system. Fortunately, Murray has both. The City of Murray took over the operation of the water system in September, 1942. Then in January, 1943, they became a combined utility. Since that date, much has been done to improve and expand Murray's water and sewer system. Today's water and sewer system is in excellent condition, ready and able to take care of Murray's needs for many years.

Facts About Murray's Water And Sewer System

- Plant Value: now stands at $895,000. Total assets $1,230,000.
- Debt: water and sewer system debt is $898,000. Payments are being made on schedule. Money was borrowed, at low interest, to expand and improve system.
- Customers: water customers total 2,400. Almost 1,600 people use the sewer system. In 1947, the water system served only about 1,600.
- Use of Water: people in Murray last year used an average of 733,000 gallons of water a day—a total of 267,764,000 during the year.
- Pumping Capacity: city has three wells, one which will deliver 800 gallons of water a minute; two will deliver 600 gallons per minute each.

ROBERT W. HUIE is Superintendent of Murray's Water and Sewer System.

Here's the water and sewer system's cashier's counter. Directly across the lobby from this counter is the electric system's cashier's counter.

Hiroshima Maiden Has Heart Attack

NEW YORK, May 25 (AP)—One of the "Hiroshima Maidens" died of a heart attack Thursday night during humanitarian surgery to remove the disfiguring scars left by the world's first atom bomb raid.

Tomoko Nakabayashi, 26, died six hours after the plastic surgery at Mt. Sinai Hospital. It was her third operation to remove the scars of World War II.

She was one of 25 Japanese girls who came to the United States to hope again for the beauty they lost during the historic leveling of Hiroshima on Japan's inland sea.

Some were so hideously disfigured they lived the lives of recluses in the picturesque city that rose again from the rubble.

"It seems impossible to recover the beauty that nature gave to us, but we live in hope," one of the girls said at a shy, giggling reception upon their arrival one year ago.

Named the "Hiroshima Maidens" by a sympathetic public, they were warmly received everywhere and taken in to American homes to live while they awaited their turn at the hospital's overcrowded operating room.

Temperature Tips On Use Of Eggs

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—It is no secret that eggs must be kept cold to retain their fresh qualities, but for success in cooking, homemakers are often in doubt as to when the chill should be taken off the egg in advance.

Here are some temperature tips cited by specialists of the West Virginia University Agricultural Extension Service.

1. A high-quality raw egg separates into white and yolk most easily when it's 50 to 60 degrees F. An egg just out of the refrigerator is so cold that its white clings to both shell and yolk, making separation difficult. On the other hand, when an egg warms up to 75 degrees F. or more, the yolk tends to flatten.

2. For cake-making, eggs should be at room temperature to combine well.

3. Egg whites whip more quickly and to a greater volume when the chill is off. The best whipping temperature ranges from 64 to 77 degrees.

4. For cooking in the shell take the chill off the egg before it goes into hot water to avoid cracking.

5. Hard-cooked eggs seem to separate most easily from shells when cold. As soon as they are cooked, cool rapidly in cold running water.

BEGINNING OF WORLD MISSIONS

Acts 13:1-4, 44-49
This lesson has to do with the attempt of the early Christians to take the gospel of Christ to their world. That effort was expressed in what is designated as Paul's First Missionary Journey.

Acts 13:1-4
Young as was the church at Antioch, there were a number of prophets and teachers in it. Such as necessary for the best church life.

The prophets make known the will and purposes of God, and the teachers explain the meaning of the Word of God. Upon the hearts of these servants of God He laid the evangelization of the world in such a way that they refrained from eating in order to ascertain His will in prayer. How much every Christian needs divine wisdom and guidance in daily life. Because the great issues of life may be determined by the simplest of choices, we need guidance at every point in life. It is glorious that the Holy Spirit is ready, willing and able to give the believer in Christ proper guidance in every detail of life.

In this first Gentile church there immediately arose a genuine interest in the salvation of those in the regions beyond. The members realized their responsibility for others. While in the pathway of Christian duty, the Holy Spirit commanded them saying, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them."

He spoke this because He wanted them to do pioneer missionary work among the unevangelized in distant places. Deeply spiritual and responsive to the guidance of the Holy Spirit, they did not raise any questions, such as how their church could get along without their ablest men. Instead, they were so yielded to Him that they were quite willing to give up their leaders to the missionary cause. Had they been like many present-day church members, they would have held on to the best and most capable ones for themselves. Rather, they gave their very best, as directed by the Spirit, and that without a single complaint. God deserves the best from all of His children.

After fasting and praying, in a very impressive service they laid their hands on Barnabas and Saul, their most brilliant and beloved men, and sent them forth as their missionaries. They were convinced that, inasmuch as Christian brethren had brought the gospel of Christ to them, they should carry it to the unsaved elsewhere. In the performance of this great task, their best was not too good for them to give. Thereafter, this church in Antioch was a great and famous center of Christian activity and missionary effort. As such it enjoyed the marvelous blessings of the Lord.

When the Gentiles were told that God had provided salvation for them in Christ, "They were glad." Many of them believed and discovered that they had been ordained to eternal life. They were grateful beyond words for what the Lord did for them, and they sought diligently to glorify Him by carrying His gospel to others.

Imagine the utter consternation of the Jews when they saw the great crowd of Gentiles who had assembled to hear Paul on the next Sabbath. Instead of rejoicing over the way in which the Gentiles responded to Paul's message, the Jews were extremely envious, jealous and angry. They contradicted his message and rallied at his work. They illustrated the fact that jealousy always makes a fool out of its victim. By their rejection of the gospel, they proved themselves to be unworthy of everlasting life. This bitter opposition of the Jews did not silence Paul and Barnabas; it simply made them more bold in their proclamation of God's truth.

When the Gentiles were told that God had provided salvation for them in Christ, "They were glad." Many of them believed and discovered that they had been ordained to eternal life. They were grateful beyond words for what the Lord did for them, and they sought diligently to glorify Him by carrying His gospel to others.

Insiders say President Eisenhower will deliver a powerhouse pronouncement on foreign policy in his commencement address at Baylor University, Waco, Tex., Friday. One big feature probably will be foreign trade. The occasion for the visit to Baylor: To collect an honorary doctorate of laws.

The Queen Says No
Buckingham Palace circles say Queen Elizabeth has reached her decision on whether to make her children pioneers in Britain's anti-polio vaccination campaign. Her answer: "No." Prince Charles, 7, and Princess Anne, 5, are expected to go without shots at least until reports on the first batch are in.

Talked Out Of Turn
Look for reports that British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd is on his way out. The probably won't materialize. But Lloyd is in bad. Landon says Prime Minister Anthony Eden is dissatisfied with his work. To make things worse, it is reported that in a speech at a secret North Atlantic treaty meeting in Paris, he made some sharp comments on the visit of Russia's Mr. B. and Mr. K. to Britain. Lloyd didn't clear the speech with Eden.

Chances for congressional enactment of revised excise taxes are getting slimmer day by day. The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a long list of changes. But tax experts figure it will take two to four weeks to draft. They fear it will be too close to adjournment then for both House and Senate to take to eternal life. They were grateful beyond words for what the Lord did for them, and they sought diligently to glorify Him by carrying His gospel to others.

Sports Outlook
Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson's next title opponent is likely to be the one who, he figures, will help draw the biggest possible gate, but who can't hurt him. Robinson would risk a beating for a big-money gate against light-heavyweight king Archie Moore. But Moore has designs on the heavyweight crown. Hence, Robinson's next title defense probably will be against Carmen Basilo, former welterweight champion whom he'd outwitted; Art Aragon, a low-rated welterweight who nevertheless is a big draw on the West Coast; or Charles Humez of France.
